

HISTORY OF THE Queensland Ambulance

Gordonvale

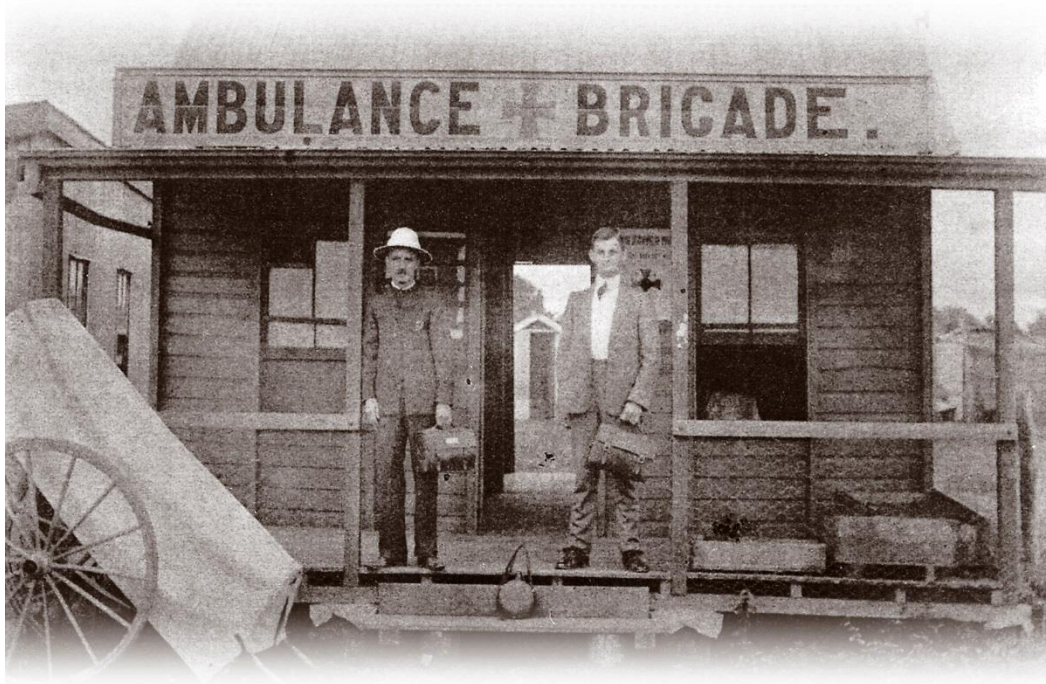

At the latter part of 1907 the foundation of the Gordonvale (then called Nelson) Centre was laid by the Cairns Centre establishing an Honorary Centre there with an Honorary Officer Kendrick in charge. Mr P.C. Kendrick was to carry out the first aid work until such time as a qualified bearer could be found.

Prior to the Honorary Centre being converted to a Sub-Centre other people who assisted Mr Kendrick and looked after the plant were Acting Police Sergeant Perkins, Mr Leitch (Schoolmaster) and Mr J. Gannon.

At a meeting of the Cairns Committee held on 12 July 1910 it was resolved to operate the Gordonvale service as a Sub-Centre. The Sub-Centre commenced on 22 September 1910 with Deputy Superintendent J.C. Fry temporarily in charge.

At the close of 1910 Officer E Greene was transferred to the Nelson Sub-Centre from Kidston and he was succeeded at Kidston by Mr Fry.

Deputy Superintendent Greene resigned to accept a position with the Queensland Railways and in July 1911 Deputy Superintendent Wm Slater was appointed in his stead.

HISTORY OF THE Queensland Ambulance

Officer Slater resigned in January 1913 to take up residence in his native England. He was succeeded by Deputy Superintendent J. Johnston who transferred from the Innisfail Sub-Centre.

The matter of allotments of land at Nelson and Innisfail was considered at a meeting of the Cairns Committee in September 1913. The late Colonel Harris, General Secretary of the Brigade, who was present, promised to go into the matter upon his return to Brisbane. As a result of his labour both Sub-Centres were granted suitable allotments of land.

At a meeting held in December 1913, the tender of Mr Geo Jacobs, of £490, for the construction of premises at Gordonvale was accepted by the Cairns Committee. The premises were officially opened in May 1914 by Honourable WM McCormack.
